To Whom It May Concern:

This letter serves as a recommendation for Bianca Thrasher's candidacy for Georgia's WIN Leadership Academy 2015.

About a year ago, Bianca volunteered to assist with the Third Annual Global Health and Humanitarian Summit at Emory University's School of Medicine in Atlanta, Georgia, where I was a leading Volunteer Coordinator. Over the extended six-month organizing period I knew Bianca through her outstanding commitment and "just do it" attitude and ability.

During that period of time, Bianca's commitment to the project never wavered and what she said she was going to do, she did. She was confident in her ability to fulfill on her promises.

Bianca raised money and in-kind contributions using her own resources and ingenuity. She contributed ideas and suggestions that moved the project forward. And, so importantly, Bianca communicated well about her progress on-task and attendance at weekly meetings over the half-year timeframe.

I admire Bianca's stand for issues that are important to her, willing to speak up on subjects that take courage and that have an effect on many others locally, and worldwide.

I have great admiration for who Bianca chooses to be, and, in addition, her attitude and willingness to cooperate as a team are what sets her above the crowd and make her a joy to work with.

Regards,
